Caroline C. Brown, 619 West 127th
Street, New York, Mr. Rundle obtained a marriage license from the town clerk here a week ago Saturday. His bride was with him at the time.

The couple were married by a local justice last Thursday, and after a wedding breakfast in New York, they returned to Mr. Rundle's palatial home in Danbury, Conn. One night in the home finished married life for Giadys and she was gone after breakfast Friday.

Mrs. Rundle motored to Danbury with her mother and a friend about two weeks ago. The friend knew Mr. Rundle and stopped for dinner at the Rundle home. Mr. Rundle is reputed to be worth $5,000,000. He owns a large home in the hatting town, also New England's famous Ridgewood stock farm, comprising 10,000 acres, and is president of the Danbury fair, and is president of the Danbury fair, and is president of the Danbury fair.

and starve. When they went away they appealed to us who remained at home to guard working conditions in the shops, so we shall safeguard the health and wages of those now carrying on the industry, as well as make a place for those who come back."

Strike headquarters have been opened at 192 Bowery. A mass meeting will be held to-morrow evening at Beethoven Hall.

Leon Mann, managing director of the American Men's and Boys' Clothing Manufacturers' Association, said that the demand for a forty-four-hour week was one which, in his opinion, could not be granted. It would be impossible, he asserted, for workers on children's clothes to work on that basis while uniform workers were at the machines forty-eight hours a week. Already, he said, workers on adults' garments were "slowing down," having adopted this form of sahotage in sympathy for the strikers.

Mr. Mann said he had written to Mr. Cohen offering to submit this question, to arbitration by the War Labor.
